Dr. Frazier's Root Bitters.

Frazler's Root Eitters are not a diam-shop whisky beverage, but are strictly medicinal in every sense. They act strongly upon the liver and kidneys, keep the bowels open and regular, make the weak strong, heal the lungs, build up the nerves and cleanse the blood and system of every impurity.

For dizzlness, rush of blood to the head tending to apopiexy, dyspepsia, fever and ague, dropsy, pimples and blotches, scrofulous humors and sores, tetter, ring worm, white swelling, erysipelas, sore eyes and for young men suffering from weakness or debillty caused from imprudence, and to females in delicate health, Frazier's Root Bitters are especially recommended,

Dr. Frazier: I have used two bottles of your Root Bitters for dyspepsla, dizziness, weakness and kidney disease, and they did me more good than the doctors and all the medicine I ever used. From the first dose I took I began to mend, and I am now in perfect health, and feel as well as I ever did. I consider your med-

A Lesson from Immigrants.

A patient waiting for results through a long series of years is not a characteristic of Americans. "Quick sales and small profits" is the motto not of the enterprising country store-keeper alone; it appears in one form or another over almost every business announcement throughout the country. To its being acted upon, however, is undoubtedly due the irrepressible push which distinguishes the American from all mankind.

To it is undoubtedly due the rapid substitution of machinery for hand labor; the interminable divisions of labor in every branch of industry; to it is due the "manufacture" of farm products, and to it is due the striking disinclination, manifest everywhere, of the average American to enter upon a general plan for money making, which involves patient waiting through a series of years.

The rapid destruction of available forests has for some time attracted the serious attention of the Government and of individuals interested in forestry, and many inducements have been held out to any one who would undertake the growing of useful trees. But thus far not many of the natives have been attracted by the offers, and it has remained for the sober, industrious, and patient emigrants, Germans, Swedes, and Norwegians, to set us a wise example.

The Federal Government offers to give every man who is the head of a family one hundred and sixty acres of land, if he will plant twenty acres of it in forest trees. Can a young man afford to accept this offer and wait for his trees to grow? There is no doubt of it-but will he? The Bulletin recently alluded to the remarkable scarcity of black walnut. This tree flourishes in many of the Western States, especially in Iowa, Minnesota, and Wisconsin. On fifty acres of such land as could be obtained here, 16,000 trees could be planted; when twenty years old they would be worth $5 a tree, or $80,000; when thirty years old they would be worth $20 a tree, or $320,000. It is said that every year, after the trees are ten years old, the nuts would be worth as much as a wheat crop from the same number of acres.

While the trees are growing any industrious farmer could obtain a handsome living from the remaining 110 acres. Surely, all this is a great inducement; at any rate, hundreds of farsighted immigrants think so, and many young men out West are beginning to think so, too. While it is probable that the figures given above are rose-colored, it is certainly true that there is more in the Government offer than most people are aware of, and thoughtful young men in the East who see but little chance for rapid accumulation here may well consider it. - New York Bulletin.

There is nothing in this world so pure and undefiled as the love of a lawyer for his client. A recent case in this city proves this. The lawyers won a big case for their client and got him a pile of money, and, with a generosity never before heard of, they have insisted upon not keeping above half of what they recovered, for their own use, and have compelled their client to take the other half. Never again let it be said that it is better to lose all than to go to law and recover everything .- Fall River Advance.

A MAN who eloped with a Wisconsin wife left a note for the husband: "I have tooked your woman; but yu ar welcum to my last week's wages, which I didn't draw; and I hoap that squares things."

Literal Oil on Troubled Waters.

A most striking experiment has been tried at the Scottish port of Peterhead. A feature of speech, for hitherto it has been little else, was turned into a literal fact. Oil was poured on the waves with the result of calming the fair way at the harbor's mouth, so that a small boat could enter in a storm. It has long been known that oil exerted this effect. It does so by simply destroying the friction of the air on the surface of the water. It smooths the way of the wind, and, consequently calms the surface of the sea. Its accidental application has probably produced the wide-spread knowledge of its effect, which has made the figure of speech universal. We are not aware that any scientific attempt has ever been made to apply oil to the waves. At Peterhead pipes were laid down and a large quantity of oil was forced through them. The oil at once rose to the surface and spread in a thin film on the water, with the effect of reducing the roughness to a mere swell. Small boats were thus able to enter the harbor which could not have ventured to do so in the rough sea which was running before the oil was spread upon it. So far, therefore, the experiment was successful. Whether it opens up the possibility that harbor mouths may be made generally safe in rough weather by the expenditure of a few hundred gallons of oil can perhaps only be decided by further trials. The machinery is, however, laid down, and further tests will, therefore, be easily applied. It is evident that the effect, as described, is one which would make all the difference between safety and danger in a harbor frequented by fishing boats, and it is in such harbors that it is likely, if anywhere, to be of permanent value. -London Daily News.

Rather Curious Law in England.

A British Member of Parliament, Mr. Macfarlane, has been comparing some of the sentences recently inflicted upon offenders of various grades, and he has reached the conclusion that, in the eyes of British law, it is a much lighter offense to kick a woman to death than to pick her pocket. A man who kicked his wife to death was sentenced to six weeks' hard labor, and in the month following a man who had picked a woman's pocket of nine shillings was sentenced to penal servitude for ten years. Nor are these exceptional cases. The penalty in a case of knocking down a wife and kicking her savagely in the face was three months' hard labor; for knocking down and kicking a woman, a fine of £1; for trying to kill a wife with a razor, being a second offense, twelve months. Against these are set such sentences as for stealing coals to the value of two shillings, eight months' hard labor; for stealing, a watch, five years' penal servitude. It would be interesting to inquire how much of this scandalous leniency to brutes is due to the ancient tradition that makes a man's wife his slave. But it does not appear necessary that the woman attacked should be the man's wife in order to give him practical immunity. In a case of violent assault upon a woman in the street, the ruffian was fined forty shillings, and in another case where three men ill-treated and killed a woman they were imprisoned, one for sixteen months and the others for six months, while a man who stole a knife and some keys got five years. All this seems to show that the equal protection of English law is not meant to extend to women.—Philadelphia Times.

FOR CONGRESS.

We are authorized to announce JAMES P. HARBESON, of Fieming county, as a caudidate for Congress, subject to the action of the Democracy in convention assembled.

Cons at Cincinnati, on Saturday declined to 742 cents a bushel.

During the last twenty years congress has given away 269,000,000 acres of the public domain to private corporations.

So far as heard from the Hon. Richard Reid, of Montgomery county, has one hundred and forty-eight instructed votes for Judge of the Superior Court. This is twenty-two more than is necessary to nominate.

A Chicago special says: "It is the general impression that long before July 1st, the last vestige of the present very successful "corner" in spring wheat will have disappeared from the books. It will doubtless be the last manipalation in this property the market will ever see."

THE New York Herald prints the following: Looking at the situation impartially, it must be confessed that the working men hold the stronger side in the contention. For more than twenty years their opponents have had everything their own way. They have succeeded in making legislation to build up their special interests. They have controlled congress and cabinets. They have the highest kind of a high tariff; and they have obtained it because they succeeded in convincing the country that it was necessary for the "protection" of "home industry. What is the result? Home industry has been "protected" to such an extent that it is on the verge of starvation. This is the lesson of the Pittsburg strikes. We have been building for years on false foundations. We have raised an immense structure, and it is tumbling around our heads. Capital should see to it that the ruin of labor does not lead to capital's own disintegration.

The Cincinnati and South Eastern Railroad For Sale.

Says the Cincinnati Enquirer of Saturday:

The Cinchnatl and South Eastern Road, which is being constructed from Newport, Ky., through Eastern Kentneky, seems to be play-lagin hard idek. It will be remembered that only afew days ago a demand was made for money by the contractors. At attempt at settlement is now being made. There is considerable of the grade ready for the rails, but where money is to come from with which the road can be completed is a question that can be answered in the dark and misty inture.

After repeated negotiations in New York to fioat more bonds, which have been in a large measure unsuccessful, it would seem that the projectors will soon be like Othello, without an occupation. It is understood now that an attempt will be made to sell the road, providing a purchaser can be found. The road when completed (if ever) will connect with the Eilzabethtown, Lexington and Big Sandy (which is now a part of the Chesapeake and Ohio system) at a point not far south of Ash-

Recent information is to the effect that overtree for the sale of the road have been made to President Huntington, of the Chesapeake and Ohio. If he would purchase it would give him a river route from Huntington, W. Va., to this city which would be several miles short than by the route of the present system. President Ingalls sald some months since that he dent fugalls said some months since that he thought it was the intention of Mr. Huntington to eventually get a river route, thereby perfecting the system into this city, and use the Elizabetiitown extension more for the purpose of compleating his system of South-western roads from Askiand to Lexington. It is not improbable that Mr. Huntington will favorably consider the matter, and ultimately purchase the strangling little babe and make a great blg man out of It.

Reports of forest fires between Wausin and Eland Junctions, Wis., prove to be much exaggerated.

The Army Worm-Method of Destroying the Pests.

The Nashville American says an old Virginian, and one of the best wheat raisers of Williamson county, says he saw an old meadow plowed up in Old Virginia once ion. Wedding Parties furnished on short noand seeded to wheat, and it was vigorously attacked by the army worm. The owner, took long lines or ropes and sent his hands through the fields daily, lightly striking or drawing the lines over the wheat, precipi-way saved his crop. Another of the very best wheat raisers of that county, found his wheat, which is pronounced by many the best in the county, attacked by the worm. They were on the stalks eating off the leaves. He procured a rope about forty or fifty feet long, and weighted in the middle with a chain, and put a boy to each end of it drawn over the wheat field once each day, and he says it throws the worm to the ground, and the fat ones or grown worms never go up again, and the dragrope precipitates them each day and they do not injure the stalk, and thus he expects to save his crop uninjured by the worm. Upon this proof the experiment is well worth trying, as it costs but little, and what has been done can be done again.

Sewerage and disease.

With the introduction of water works the attention of our citizens has naturally been directed to the question of sewerage, though unfortunately without reference story of the crime is one of the most reto the vitally important question of sanitation, and since the problem of sewerage and sanitation must be solved together, and are taking all the resources of modern medicine and mechanics, it is well that our citizens should hasten slowly even in the apparently unimportant matter of constructing a drain.

Dr. Frank Hamilton, of New York, adverting to the well-known fact that the socalled "zymotic," diseases are nourished and multipled by warmth and filth, has recently confirmed by some quotations Dr. Carpenter of London, an opinion from previously expressed by himself, that scarlet fever, diphtheria and other diseases of this class might be derived from cesspools, and conveyed through sewers. Dr. Carpenter's paper appears in the Sanitary Record for March 1882, and is entitled were dressed in white, trimmed with blue "Some of the Conditions Which Modify ribbons, hair nicely smoothed and tied or Increase the Infective Character of Scarlatina." The subjoined extracts will repay perusal; and their importance will be appreciated by every intelligent citizen.

Dr. Carpenter says, "I have for a long time past had my own opinions as to the causation of scarlatina, and of the conditions which modify or increase its infectious character. These opinions have been based upon an experience which has not been narrow, or restricted to a practice among one class of persons or to one disthict." He then proceeds to give a resume of personal investigation and study of four severe outbreaks of scarlatina; all of which, in spite of the most energetic sanitary measures, continued to recur at longer or shorter intervals, until the connection with the sewers, or with sewage sinks was severed; and the epidemics disappeared altogether.

All of these outbreaks occurred in pri-THE Sodality B. V. M. will give an ice vate or public school houses. It is expected to be a nection the disease promptly and permanently disappeared; and Dr. Carpenter remarks: "It must be evident that the cesspools in Ox Friday, at Ripley, Nelson Brown, the school yard was intimately associated with the reapearance of scarlatina; that it contained some material which continued the vitality of the disease germs."

> The second example was in the case of a private school. Three successive outbursts of scarlatina occured, until, the "watercloset was taken away altogether." Since which time it has not reappeared, now a period of nearly eight years.

> "The third set of cases" appeared in an elementary school. After a fruitless attempts to expel it, "I came to the conclusion," says Dr. Carpenter, "that the fault in the construction of the sewer system, which I am about to detail to you, was the foundation of this epidemic."

The fourth set of cases was in a school connected with a large pauper establishment. "We know" says Dr. Carpenter. "how scarlatina gained admission to the infirmary. The washings and excreta of the patients naturally found admission to the sewer, and I proved that that there was a current up the sewer sometimes."

Finally Dr. Carpenter remarks "what inference do I draw from these cases." It is that the causation of scarlatina may as often arise from sewage emanations, and sewage contaminated with the scarlatina germs

A Mother's Terrible Deed.

Chicago, June 10.—Mary Syeboldt, aged thirty-five years, wife of Casper Syeboldt, a baker, murdered her four children this morning and then committed suicide. The markable in the police annals of Chicago, and ranks with any of the Borgia sensations. At five o'clock this morning Casper Syeboldt a rived home, after working all night at J. B. Campbell's bakery, and was met at the door by his wife. She was dressed in a new chemise, trimmed with lace and blue ribbon, purchased especially for the awful occasion. She acted strangely and could scarcely stand.

"Come in, Casper, come in," she said, waving her hand, "and see our little children. They are all dead—all our four little children are dead-gone to heaven, Casper. See how pretty they are! Every one got nice flowers for the angels!"

For a moment the husband was stunned and thought his wife crazy. He hurried to the bedroom, and there a strange sight met his horrified eyes. Laid out as for burial were the four children-Matilda, aged twelve; Anton, aged seven; Annie, aged two years and six months, and the baby, aged less than four months. They with blue ribbons, and in their hands bouquets of fresh flowers. All were stone dead except Matilda, and she was just breathing.

Mrs. Syeboldt followed her husband into the room so full of death, and said: "Yes, I sent them all to heaven because God wanted them."

Casper Syeboldt was stupefied. His lips moved, but no sound came. He at last recovered sufficiently to realize the awful deed, and then hastened across the street and summoned Mr. Martin, a grocer. That gentleman hastily procured the services of Dr. Moore, but he could do nothing for the dying Matilda.

Attention was then turned to Mrs. Sevboldt, who was in convulsions. She managed to tell the physician that she gave the poison to her children first, laid them out, and then prepared herself for death, taking the remnant of a large dose of strychnine. She died in great agony shortly after seven o'clock and was laid ond street, Maysville, Ky. out beside her children.

It is difficult to find a motive for a crime so unnatural and terrible, but it is presumed that domestic troubles caused the woman to lose her mind. The husband is in such questions intelligently. Mrs. Syeboldt procured the poison at Werkmeister's drugstore, Archer avenue, yesterday afternoon, and as soon as her husband left for his work last night she coolly began preparations for the murder, dressing herself and the children as described.

The home of the Syeboldts is in the second story of a poor little frame house, and bears the impress of poverty. Among the neighbors the Syeboldt family bears a good reputation, and its members have been considered honest, hard-working, respectable people. If the wife and husband had trouble sufficiently serious to cause insanity, the people in the neighborhood have no knowledge of it. Mr. Syeboldt's friends were summoned and took him in charge. Matilda, the fourth and oldest of the murdered children, died at ten o'clock, completing the list of mother and four children dead within a few hours, and in the same room.

The place of the murder was througed this morning with curious and sympathizing friends. The room occupied by the distracted husband, Casper Syeboldt, and where his dead wife and children are lying, composed part of the second story of a cheap, plain, two-story tenement. The rooms are furnished only with the furni-ture and utensils barely necessary for We offer a very large stock of housekeeping.

The motive of the woman in this silent, bloodless destruction of her children and self may be gleaned from the following notes and bits of writing found among the effects of the family this morning. They are by the oldest child, a daughter of twelve. The resignation shown by the writer is remarkable. That domestic unhappiness was no minor couse for the deed of the mother will be inferred from the sound as grape-shot on all political issues. two verses of the hymn beginning: "There He would serve the state very creditably is a happy land," &c. Another note is addressed to a playmate:

"MARY MURPHY: Please tell Lizzie Martin [probably the daughter of the landlord of the house No. 51 Finnel], Minnie Otten and Lizzie Reymond that I have forgotten their dispute and forgiven them. I guess they will feel sorry for it. May they think of me as their friend. TILLIE SYEBOLDT."

Other notes read as follows: DEAR PAPA: Forgive me. We have to leave you. Mamma thought it was the best we could do. I am now in the better land, where we all can live in freedom. MATILDA." Your daughter,

"DEAR PAPA: Please bury us decent, at Wudder's cemetery, that we may all be buried together. That's all I request from you. My knife and money is for your present, and is in the collar box. Buy for Anton, Annie and self flowers from the money which I have saved. It is mine. The knife is yours."

"FOR MAY MURPHY: I will tell you the story of our trouble. My mother was alwas sick, you know, and thought often of dving, and thought how if she was dead how we would be treated, and so thought best for all of us to die at once, and bought something to kill us. The baby first, Annie second, Tony third, and I after, and then my mother. We did not suffer much and we are all out of trouble."

"Rosy Monnis: Take the book that I've brought home from school, It is not mine. It is the history of the United States. Take It to room 5, to Geo. Capronice. It is on the lower shelf of the closet."

"This is for Mary and Nell Murphy, my dear playmates: I wish you a hapier and better time than I had. Good bye. You are all welcome."

Two or three of the slips containing portions of the above were written in German characters' the remainder in English.

THE WORKSHOP.

THE first type-setting machine was invented in Connecticut, in 1820, by Dr. William Church.

Burning kerosene oil can be extinguished by throwing milk upon it. A person's first impulse is to throw water, but the oil rises and the only result is to make the first spread.

A NOVELTY in carriage springs consists of an elliptic spring connected to the vehicle body at its upper side, and on its lower side to a half-spring extending across the body by jointed couplingstuds.

To MAKE cisterns and tanks water tight paint thickly on the inside with a mixture of eight parts of melted glue and four of linseed oil, boiled with litharge. In forty-eight hours it will be so hard that the tank can be filled with water.

To fix pencil marks so they will not rub, take well skimmed milk and dilute with an equal bulk of water. Wash the pencil marks (whether writing or drawing) with this liquid, using a soft camelhair brush, and avoid a'l rubbing. Place upon a flat board to dry.

A ROAD locomotive for war purposes was lately tried before Count Moltke. It weighed 28% tons, and drew easily forty tons' weight of guns mounted on their carriages fully equipped. Its maximum traction power is 150 tons and its cost of maintenance is about thirty cents

Lubrication. For general purposes, sperm answers best; hext, winter-strained lard-oil. For high speed and heavy pressures, add finest air-floated plumbago (graphite, black lead). For cooling heated journals use flour of sulphur and olive oil. For curing badly scored journals use lead filings.

A NEW filter consists of a bottomless jug placed in an open vessel containing filtering material. Around the sides of the jug near the bottom is a series of perforations, through which the water precolates after passing through the filtering material. A pipe inserted into the neck of the jug serves to draw off the filtered liquid.

Silk workers from Europe are astonished to find here no schools for instruction in the mechanical arts and industries. In every considerable European manufacturing town there are polytechnic schools. Zurich, with twenty per cent. less population than Paterson, has two such schools, where all the useful arts are taught, even to basket making.

A COLUMN of water 2.3093 feet (or 27.71 inches) high, at 62 degrees Fahrenheit, will exert a pressure of one pound per square inch. A column of water 33.946 feet high, at 62 degrees Fahrenheit, will exert a pressure of one atmosphere (14.7 pounds per square inch); 1728 cubic inches, 2200.15 cylindrical inches, 3300.23 spherical inches, or 6600.45 conical inches, make one cubic foot.

The largest turn-table in the world is said to be that of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Road, at Chleago, which is seventy feet in length. In England most of the roads have short turn-tables, and cut the tender loose from the engine when turning it. In this country the average length of the turn-table is fifty feet, but the putting in service of heavy engines necessitates the roads using them putting in sixty-foot turn-tables,

THE comparative strength of wire and manila rope was severely tested in the attempt of the Persian monarch to tow the disabled steamer Edam, as reported on the 18th ult. The tow line, as described by Capt. Duncombe, was a composite affair, the two ends being of manila and the central portion of wire, the whole attached to the steamer by a spring. In repeated efforts the manila yielded every time, and at last went to pieces, so that the Edam was abandoned to her fate. The wire portions remained intact.

Getting Rid of Them.

"Do you really write out in the woods, Mr. Daetyl?" "Indeed I do, miss." "And what do you do when one of those horrid ten-footed bugs drops on your face and begins to tickle?" "Oh! I just wait until he gets through tickling, and then I shout 'Bug-on!' and at once there's a bug off."

BATCHELDER'S Ventilated Egg

Patented February 15, 188t.

Indispensible to Merchants Shippers And Producers.

The outside frame of this carrier contains five trays, held in place by fasteners at end of case, as seen in cut. These Trays are constructed in reversible halves. The above cut shows one whole tray filled ready to be placed in case, each egg resting in its cardboard socket in such a manner as to be readily counted, candied, or transferred from tray to tray, or case to case without rehandling.

For cold storage this case will store 60 dozen with racks made to receive the half trays, hence this is the cheapest storage case manufactured, saving largely in space.

The manner of holding the eggs on end prevents oscillation, addling, or brekage, and adds greatly to their freshness when carried long in storage. Size of 30 dozen No. 1 cases 25x12x14, welghs 20 pounds.
